

BACHELIER FINANCE SOCIETY

About Us

The Bachelier Finance Society (BFS) was founded in 1996 by a group of researchers anticipating the need for an organization in mathematical finance where academia and practitioners have the opportunity to meet and exchange ideas. The Society has members in more than 30 countries on all continents, with the largest density in North America and Europe.

The objective of the BFS is to promote the discipline of finance by applying the theory of stochastic, statistical and economic theory, and to create an inclusive scientific community in mathematical finance. We organize and support international conferences and meetings as well as online seminars. The main focus is on the official BFS congresses held biennially, which offer a lively forum between industry and academia. We are also affiliated with Mathematical Finance, one of the leading journals in the field.

Main Events of BFS

- International BFS congresses: every two years
- One World Seminar Series: every two weeks, online
- Bruti Liberati Award: yearly
- BFS Junior Scholar Award: at BFS congresses
- Newsletter: quarterly
- Mailings: about five a month

Join to be part of the community

Past worldwide financial crises have emphasized the importance of science in the field of mathematical finance. By joining BFS you will become part of a vibrant community worldwide and enjoy several advantages. Do not miss the chance of meeting experts from academia and industry. Engage yourself in our various activities and contribute to solutions for future challenges.

Membership and benefits

The annual dues for being a BFS member are US $60. We offer free memberships for students, postdocs and early career, non-tenure positions. There is also an option to become a lifetime member.

As a member you benefit from reduced registration fees at BFS congresses, free online access to our affiliated journal Mathematical Finance, a chance to participate in the BFS Junior Scholar Award, generous subscription rates on selected journals and discounts on selected books, and you can subscribe to our newsletters and mailings.

Further information can be found on our website:

www.bachelierfinance.org/membership